

WHAT'S NEXT?

#3

At one of our elementary schools, the principal confronted teachers who were distributing a survey asking if the site wished to establish a Faculty Advisory Council. The principal indicated that there was no need as it was just another meeting and would take the members away from more important meetings. Maybe the principal didn't know Article 28 of the 2007-2010 contract between MDUSD and our members established Faculty Advisory Councils/ Faculty Senates "...in the interest of fostering both good communication and mutual efforts aimed at the common good of the school or program:" Or, maybe the principal did not believe that "good communication" and "common good" were very important.
